

Acknowledgements

The Metropolitan Policy Program at Brookings would like to thank the Nathan Cummings Foundation and the Alcoa Foundation for their support of the Program's clean economy research. We would also like to thank general supporters of the Program's advanced industries initiative, including Antoine van Agtmael, the Arconic Foundation, Central Indiana Corporate Partnership / BioCrossroads, HCA Healthcare, Lear Corporation, and Switch.

For their substantive contributions to this policy brief and invaluable insights, meanwhile, we wish to thank David Hart, Bruce Jones, Jessica Lovering, Adele Morris, and David Victor. And finally, within the Metropolitan Policy Program, the authors would like to thank Alan Berube, Joe Kane, Amy Liu, and Jacob Whiton for their substantive assistance; Patrick Watson for his editorial help; and Julia Kraeger and Allison Courtin for visual development, design, and layout.

Finally, a special shout-out is in order for our stellar research assistant Sifan Liu and our intern Kevin Baier.

About the Authors

Devashree Saha is a senior policy associate and associate fellow at the Brookings Institution Metropolitan Policy Program. Her research primarily focuses on the intersection of clean energy and economic development policy, including the transition to a clean energy economy.

Contact: dsaha@brookings.edu

Mark Muro, a senior fellow and director of policy for the Metropolitan Policy Program at Brookings, manages the program's public policy analysis and leads key policy research projects.

Contact: mmuro@brookings.edu

About the Metropolitan Policy Program at Brookings

The Metropolitan Policy Program at Brookings delivers research and solutions to help metropolitan leaders build an advanced economy that works for all. To learn more visit www.brookings.edu/metro.

The Brookings Institution is a nonprofit organization devoted to independent research and policy solutions. Its mission is to conduct high-quality, independent research and, based on that research, to provide innovative, practical recommendations for policymakers and the public. The conclusions and recommendations of any Brookings publication are solely those of its author(s), and do not reflect the views of the Institution, its management, or its other scholars.

Brookings recognizes that the value it provides is in its absolute commitment to quality independence, and impact. Activities supported by its donors reflect this commitment.

1775 Massachusetts Avenue, NW
Washington D.C. 20036-2188
telephone 202.797.6000
fax 202.797.6004
www.brookings.edu

Metropolitan Policy Program
telephone 202.797.6139
fax 202.797.2965
www.brookings.edu/metro